Vienna, March 20.

PReparations are making here for the Reception of their Impeirial Majesties, who had resolved to part from Lintz as yesterday, but our Letters that arrived this day from thence, inform us, that the indisposition of the Imperial Prince, will keep the Court there some days longer. From Hungary they write, that the Turks continue to make Provision in their Frontier Places, as if they had thoughts of a War on that side, which we may well believe they have, if what we are told of their being in a Treaty with the Moscovites be true. In Hungary as well the Imperial Troops as those of the Malecontents, continue in their Quarters assigned them, and though the Emperor to gratifie the latter, has called a Dyet, and that other steps have been made towards an Accommodation, yet they continue to have a watchful eye upon one another; and Count Caprara, who Commands the Emperors Forces will not permit them to stir out of their Quarters.

Lintz, March 23. Part of the Emperors Family has already left this place and is gone for Vienna; and their Imperial Majesties would not have been here now, but that the Imperial Princes being somewhat out of order, has made them put off their departure till the 28th of this Month. The Duke of Lorrain and the Queen of Poland his Wife, parted from hence yesterday for Inspruck. We have Letters from Hungary which tell us, that it is generally believed in those parts that the Turks will employ their Arms on that side the next Summer, for that they provide Magazines in their Frontier places, and that their Troops begin already to march that way.

Franfort, March 27. The French are preparing the ways between Verdun, Metz, Buneville, and St. Dies, for the more easie passage of the Troops that are ordered to march to Alsace. From Ratisbonne they write, that the Dyet had resumed the consideration of the matter of the Mint, which they have been so long labouring to make a Regulation in.

Strasburg, March 28. The Baron de Monclar is returned from France; and is expected to morrow at Haguenaw, as is said, to mark out a Camp for the Troops that begin to draw together. The Fortifications at Saar Louis and Longwi advance apace, seventeen Batallions being employed therein at each place.

Hamburg, March 28. A great many Horses are buying up in Holstein for the Service of the French King. Prince Louis and his Wife the Princess Radzeville are arrived at Berlin. In Poland the Dyet is still sitting; we may expect our next Letters will tell us of its being ended, and of the Resolutions they have taken.

Berlin, March 30. The 27th Instant arrived here Prince Louis and the Princess Radzeville, they were received by the Burghers in Arms, and Saluted with a Discharge of all the Canon round the Town. They intend to go and visit the Elector to morrow at Postdam. It is reported that the Plague is broke out at Magdeburg, which if true, will put off the Electors Journey thither, which he has resolved in order to his receiving the Homage of those his Subjects; and that he may be truly informed, he has sent thither Colonel Borstelt to enquire into the occasion of this Report. From Cleves we have an Account, that General Spaen, who is Governor for his Electoral Highness of that Countrey, has given out Commissions for the raising of Men both Horse and Foot, which probably will somewhat allarm the Spaniards considering how things at present stand between them and his Electoral Highness, who seems resolved to pursue his pretensions upon them.

Cologne, April 1 On Saturday last Count Tafi the Emperors Envoye to several Princes of the Empire, arrived here, and the next day had an Audience of our Elector: and to morrow he parts again from hence for Duseldorp, and from thence for Munster. By Passengers come from Liege we are told, that our Electors Troops had posted themselves near that City, and two days since an Officer who came hither to raise Men privately for the Service of the said City, was seized by order of our Elector, and sent prisoner to Brevil.

Liege, April 1. Several Troops are come to Verviers, and its given out they are sent by our Prince for the security of the States of this Diocess, which are now Assembled by his order at St. Tron; but we have a great jealousie that their real design is against us, and therefore we are going to raise 500 Foot and 100 Horse; and our Magistrates have on severe penalties, forbid all persons to remove themselves or their Goods from hence, which the apprehensions they are now in would otherwise make many do; In the mean time these disorders give a great disturbance to our Trade, and People begin to be sensible that they have been led into them by those who preferred their own private Designs and Animosities to the publick good.

Brussels, March 30. The Nations of this City have finally granted a Supply of 800000 Livres, being the Sum which the Duke de Villa Hermosa demanded of them before he left this Government; which our present Governor the Prince of Parma has accepted of, and People here hope he will now change his Resolution of removing the Court from hence His Highness parts to morrow for Antwerp, but will return hither again. From Luxemburg we have an Account.
